

WeldTec®

bullet proof. . .

. . . that's the only way to describe WeldTec's new Overcoat™ leather cable covers.

These unique patented two-piece protective covers are made using a “bullet proof” cowhide leather main cover and a glove soft leather extension cover. They are designed specifically to bundle and protect the expensive hoses and cables used on TIG torches, MIG guns and plasma torches.

The cowhide leather cover will take the abuse of being dragged on the shop floor, over the weld fixture and even over sharp edges on the work piece. It is not affected by sparks, spatter, flames, heat or cold and is closed with a “bullet proof” Velcro® closure that will not arc-out or melt and is double stitched with heat resistant Kevlar® thread for durability.

The 6 foot glove soft leather extension cover is fitted with a non-conductive zipper closure and extends from the cowhide cover up to the TIG torch handle giving the operator a light weight, highly flexible protective cover at the torch end. The softer extension cover resists burns, tears, cuts and does not pickup grinding burrs. The two covers can easily be replaced separately if needed.

These protective covers will pay for themselves many times over in reduced cable/hose replacement costs and reduced down time.
